Unless otherwise indicated herein, the approaches described in this section are not prior art to the claims in this application and are not admitted to be prior art by inclusion in this section. In many situations, biometric information, e.g., fingerprint, face, iris, and retina, is used for user identification or other purposes. For example, a user may be prevented from accessing certain resources or services without first providing a valid biometric identity. Similarly, a user may be granted access to certain resources or services only when the user presents a valid biometric identity. However, under some circumstances, biometric information may be sufficiently spoofed (e.g., with a different person's fingerprint, face, iris, or retina) so that it is difficult or impossible to determine whether the biometric information provided by a user matches that of the user of interest. Consequently, it may be desirable to provide mechanisms to authenticate or otherwise verify biometric information of a user in a manner that does not rely solely on the presence or absence of biometric information, such as fingerprint, face, iris, or retina, of the user. In one of the most-watched House races in history, Hawaii Democratic Rep. Tulsi Gabbard was all but eliminated from having a chance of winning reelection after she refused to either admit or deny the allegations of sexual assault made against her, Politico reports. On Thursday, the Cook Political Report, a nonpartisan election website,
