With this tool, you can easily convert your Microsoft Word documents into any one of these formats: JPG, TIFF, BMP, PNG, or EPS. You can also specify the compression of the image, or disable the automatic compression. In addition, with the help of this Word tool, you can also convert documents from MS Word 2000 and later versions to HTML format, and you can also choose the type of the frames, so that you can easily create some HTML pages. After converting your MS Word document, it can be saved as either an image (JPEG, TIFF, PNG) or EPS (vector), and this option can be selected under the "Options" tab. These converted files can be saved to any location on your hard disk, and they can be then viewed with any graphics software, such as Adobe Photoshop and Corel Draw. System Requirements: Microsoft Word 2000 or later versions Yaourt - Database management application. Yaourt is a database management tool, which manages relations between data (entities), and is responsible for the storage of the data in databases. By managing the relations, the system can recognize the data and the information it needs (independently of their location), and can automatically generate the corresponding reports or messages (or both). Yaourt supports the following databases: MySQL, PostgreSQL, and MSSQL. Yaourt is also able to store the relations between tables in NoSQL databases such as MongoDB and CouchDB, thanks to the integration of the program. In addition, it's possible to import the content of an Excel sheet into the system, and export it from Yaourt. All the programs included in the distribution are SQL, PHP and Perl based, so they can be used and developed directly from Yaourt. The idea of this tool is that it makes our work easier, helping us to manage, access, and extract data and information we need. Yaourt includes an integrated tool for database creation and management, where it is possible to: Creation of a database: it can be created using a text editor, like Notepad, or you can save it in the Yaourt tool, which is included in the distribution. Creation of tables: tables in a database are represented by logical and physical relations. Yaourt uses three different types of tables: table with one type of column, table with two types of columns, and table with more than two types of columns. Creation of columns: columns represent one of the main parts of a database table (name, description, type, etc.). Creation of relations: each column can be related to one or more tables, which are called relations. This is how we store the information and links between the data. Creation of indexes: indexes are fast access columns that are often used in a database to make searches faster, and can also be
