(3d Cir.1984); Rogers v. Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., 709 F.Supp. 492, 497 (D.C. Mo.1988). First, there can be no breach of an implied contract on the part of the publisher if the author consents to the publication of his or her work. Under either copyright or implied contract law, the essential inquiry for both parties is whether the author consented to the publication of his or her work. See King Features Syndicate, Inc. v. Fleischer, 659 F.Supp. at 1205; Rogers, 709 F.Supp. at 497; Metric & Multistandard Components Corp. v. Kohler, 70 F.2d at 663. As the parties' submissions show, the court determines consent for each publication contract through a choice of law analysis. III. CHOICE OF LAW For purposes of this motion, defendants have submitted an affidavit of John D. Cioca in which he states that "[i]n New York, a New York publisher can publish material written in another state without the consent of the author." (Cioca Affidavit ¶ 2.) Cioca further states that "publication of material in the United States or overseas without the consent of the author is a violation of New York law." (Id. ¶ 4.) Plaintiffs dispute these statements, noting that they are neither supported by the applicable statutory or decisional law of New York nor reflected in New York's Conflict of Laws rules. Thus, plaintiffs contend that the publication of copyrighted works in the United States without the consent of the author violates neither the common law of contract nor the statutory law. Section 96 of the New York Civil Practice Law and Rules (C.P.L.R.) governs choice of law issues. Section 96 addresses choice of law in contract cases. It states, in relevant part: (1)... When a transaction bears a reasonable relation to this state and also to another state or nation, the parties may agree that the law either of this state or of such other state or nation shall govern their rights and duties. Failing such agreement this act shall apply to the extent that the law of this state and that other state or nation is similar. N.Y.Civ.Prac.L. & R. § 96(1) (emphasis added). "When dealing with contractual choice of law problems, Section 96 of the CPLR establishes two general
