“There have been many, many promising movies about the role of technology in a post-apocalyptic society,” said Tom Fox of the L.A. office of agent Josh Greenstein at a “What’s in the Script” session hosted by That Guy Film. “It’s the potential to take that concept, to really give it a strong, compelling film and not necessarily to make an academic exercise or a parody or just to be navel-gazing.” J.C. Chandor, who was recently nominated for a best directing Oscar for “A Most Violent Year,” presented an original script he wrote with his brother, Marc, in which an expert in a primitive, hand-cranked medicine who strikes up a romance with his adopted daughter (played by Jessica Chastain). Greenstein made it clear the brothers’ screenplay doesn’t go in the genre-movie direction that “Safe House” and other films in the genre have. “This is about a father-daughter relationship,” Greenstein said. “The world the writers have created is more concerned with the reason things were created in the first place, the choices that humans make, the deliberate manipulation of the environment and how it affects humans.” That Guy Film is one of several contenders in Hollywood’s annual search for a script that will be given the prize of being turned into a potential theatrical release. The other contenders are “Bad Education,” presented by Ridley Scott and Branko Lustig; “Dinner for Schmucks,” presented by the Sean Penn and Reese Witherspoon-scripted “Bonhoeffer,” “The Deuce,” presented by Evan Goldberg and Thomas Harris and “The Good Cop,” presented by John Ridley. The “Best Original Screenplay” award, which has a $30,000 prize, will be presented on Monday at the Academy’s Santa Monica complex. The “Winning Screenplay” award, presented at the evening Oscars ceremony, will include a $15,000 prize. Michael Ferris, the studio chief of Marvel Entertainment, delivered the opening remarks at the “What’s in the Script” session. “This is how the Marvel Cinematic Universe starts,” he said. “This

Q: Copying files from My Documents I am fairly new to file copying and drag-and-drop operations on Windows. I have created a button that allows a user to 'copy' a file in the following way: MyFileToCopy.Copy(TargetPath); I also have an OpenFileDialog where a user can select a file for transfer. My question is, is there a good way to 'drag' the file from the OpenFileDialog, into the same folder as my button's targeted file? A: If you want to open a file dialog you can use ShowOpenFileDialog If you want to copy/move files use the native Windows API's, it is much easier than using the Windows API functions. Use MoveFile: IntPtr source = Path.Combine("C:\source", "file"); FileStream sourceStream = File.OpenRead(source); FileStream destinationStream = File.Create(Path.Combine("C:\destination", "file")); byte[] buffer = new byte[sourceStream.Length]; sourceStream.Read(buffer, 0, buffer.Length); destinationStream.Write(buffer, 0, buffer.Length); sourceStream.Close(); destinationStream.Close(); You can also use the CopyFileEx function. If you want to copy/move files using the Windows API functions, you need to use CreateFileMapping and the OpenFileMapping function. Here is a sample: var fileName = "something.txt"; //FileNamePath will be C:\something\something.txt const string subDir = "D:\something\"; //Create a Directory Directory.CreateDirectory(subDir); //If you are copying to C:\Program Files\Microsoft Visual Studio\2017\Enterprise\VC#\ //Create a file const string filePath = @"C:\Program Files\Microsoft Visual Studio\2017\Enterprise\VC#\somewhere\src\something.cs"; var fileHandle = CreateFile(filePath, GENERIC_READ|GENERIC_WRITE, 0, IntPtr.Zero, CREATE_ALWAYS, FILE_FLAG_OVERLAPPED, IntPtr.Zero); try
