Numpad N was started as a hobby project. A friend of mine, who had zero interest in programming, was initially excited about the idea of something like that (which he hadn't seen yet) and contributed a small amount of money. A couple of months later, he was no longer able to bear it and had the sourcecode dumped on to the FTP server. And there it has stayed, untouched, ever since. Thus it is more or less a one man project, and it does now essentially consist of making windows games for fun. Numpad N is a Windows application written in C#. It can be used to play games, such as Tetris, Ms. Pacman, Space Invaders, Shadow of the Beast, Super Mario Bros, Hero Islands, Ghosts 'n' Goblins, etc. Any game that you can run on a computer of some sort, can be run using Numpad N. If you would like to contribute code, or want to help out with translating the Numpad N application, please contact the author. Numpad N for Windows has been released under the GNU General Public License and is free for all and any use. If you would like to give a donation, this would be very much appreciated. If you would like to play Numpad N games, visit Numpad N and have a nice time. Numpad N is a simple program that lets you step through all the numpad numbers. Press the numbers to move forward in time. Press them again to backtrack. Usage examples: Loading the game: Let's say you have a game saved on disk. You can load it using numpad n. Press "Play" to start the game. Or you could just press numpad 0 to enter the game. It's also possible to select a different n

After Derek Jeter grounded out to second, Juan Miranda hit a ball to shallow right field. Outfielder Johnny Damon then made a spectacular leaping catch and threw to third for the inning's first out. But Damon blew a straightforward throw to second, allowing Wright to run and score. The Yankees then turned to the bullpen. Chad Gaudin (0 1/3) came in to face Evan Longoria with no outs. But Longoria hit a chopper to third that Orlando Cabrera popped up to shortstop. Back in the box, Gaudin threw to second for the inning's second out, and the sequence was repeated: Gaudin threw to third for the third out. The score was 6-0 in favor of the Rays at the time, but the Yankees' win probability dropped by an astonishing 43 percentage points just from their third-inning at-bats. On average, a hitter facing three pitches in the inning gets no hits just over 28 percent of the time. In the fourth inning, the Yankees faced another threatening situation. With two outs and no runners on base, Bobby Abreu hit a deep fly ball that was deep enough that it was even halfway to the seats before it fell. The light-hitting Ben Zobrist ran for it and dove head-first to take a foul ball off his mask 09e8f5149f

_____ Why this app works as a router? Well, here is the logic: - All wireless clients connect to the router, not to the AP. - Router has the IP assigned to it, not to the AP. - The router can distinguish between the clients and the AP. - Access point generates traffic because it broadcasts its SSID. - Traffic would be blocked by firewall in the router. This application is not an exception. The main application works on the principle of the firewall. Network Ghost is not a router software.
