You're going to want the PD fix to work and be able to play multiplayer on the PC.. this is the case, you need to reinstall (re-update) the game,.Q: Setting font in console terminal I'm trying to specify the font for a progress bar in a C++ project using a console terminal in Win32. I was hoping it would be something like this: SetConsoleOutputCP(CP_UTF8); SetConsoleOutputCP(CP_UTF8); SetConsoleCP(CP_UTF8); SetConsoleCP(CP_UTF8); But obviously, that's not working. The console is showing in Greek. Is there a way of using the Win32 console to specify the system font (inherited from windows?) I'm using MingW and I'm targeting Windows XP A: The code you show will only set the console codepage to UTF-8. It will set the console codepage to the system codepage, as well as the current code page (the codecvt facet). You need to set the console codepage to the encoding you want to output in your source code, and then you will be able to output Greek characters correctly, as the console will use those as the encoding to display them. Use this sample to set your desired font and encoding: #include #include #include // setting the console codepage to a specific code page std::locale oldloc(std::locale(), new wchar_t[10]{0x0401}); std::wcout.imbue(oldloc); // setting the console codepage to UTF-8 std::wcout.imbue(std::locale("C")); // setting the desired font and encoding std::cout.imbue(std::locale(new std::codecvt_utf8)); int main() { std::wcout
