Carbapenems are the first-line antibiotics against P. aeruginosa infections. Among the members of the carbapenem family, imipenem is one of the most frequently used for treating infections caused by P. aeruginosa. P. aeruginosa has become increasingly resistant to clinically available antibiotics, such as aminoglycosides, cephalosporins, and carbapenems ([@B1]). The most commonly described resistance mechanism is production of various β -lactamases that hydrolyze β -lactam antibiotics ([@B2]). Based on drug-sensitive information, carbapenem-resistant P. aeruginosa (CRPA) has emerged and spread worldwide. In addition to β -lactamases, P. aeruginosa has also developed various mechanisms, including alterations in outer membrane proteins (porins), changes in lipopolysaccharide, and increased efflux pumps. Here, we report the draft genome sequence of CRPA (P. aeruginosa strain P56105) isolated in North Carolina, USA, in 2010, using a full-genome sequencing system ([

MULTi22-ElAmigos Â . Left 4 Dead 2 MULTi22-ElAmigos. Left 4 Dead 2 MULTi22-ElAmigos What is Left 4 Dead 2 MULTi22-ElAmigos?Walsh Brothers
The Walsh Brothers were a prominent African-American professional basketball team that played in the Atlantic Coast League, the first organized basketball league. History The brothers, S.A. (Shorty) and Alvin Walsh, were former world-class basketball players and played on the greatest all-black basketball team of all time, the 1936 Jesse Owens. Alvin Walsh had played at the University of Pittsburgh and was the first African-American selected to play in the National Basketball League (NBL). After the death of their mother in 1934, the older brother married a former star of the all-black female team, the Pittsburgh Rooseveltettes. The Walsh brothers had been played for the first time in the NBL against the all-white Cincinnati Royals, who were coached by the legendary Rick Adelman. The Harlem Globetrotters soon got in contact with the Walsh brothers and signed Alvin as their first professional basketball player. Alvin Walsh played for the Globetrotters for 7 years, until he signed with the Washington Capitols in 1941. The older brother bought the rights to the Washington Capitols and renamed it the Washington Kaiser Twins. Under the new name, they played against the Harlem Globetrotters, where they enjoyed some success and won the first two Globetrotters-Kaiser Twins All-Star games. However, the team lost a string of series to the Globetrotters and new owners made the brothers sell the team for a paltry $5000. From the beginning, the team was poorly coached and played like the Globetrotters. In 1941, the Walsh brothers made the jump to the Atlantic Coast League, a black league. The owner wanted to use the Walsh Brothers name, which was allowed because he had bought the name from the Globetrotters, and played the year at the Cylburn Gardens in Baltimore. During his stay in the ACCL, Shorty scored a record of 16 points in the league's first ever 648931e174
