Full-Motion Video The introduction of HyperMotion Technology offers a whole new level of realism for players. Full-Motion Video, also known as FMV, is a fully-animated presentation of players, animations, ball movements and pitches that accurately reflects the real-world action captured in the game. Characters react and behave like they do in real life, reacting quickly and delivering crisp responses. Players and players' movements are further reflected in the game with accurate rotations, movements and footwork. Teammates react dynamically to surrounding movement and teammates' actions, while opponents immediately establish a physical awareness of teammates that has never been possible before. The combination of Visual Concepts' movement data and real-world player likeness ensures an authentic gameplay experience for both players and spectators. The goalkeepers maintain a more compact, realistic, athlete-like stance. The introduction of the Full-Motion Video technology to FIFA has evolved significantly over the years, which can be seen in the progression of the style of the animation and the realism of movement and reactions. The design is better matching the size of the characters and the realism of their movements, and more fluid. With "Full-Motion Video" a new era of immersive football gaming is born. Managing Team Behavior with Introspection Once in a game, in-game coaching features bring players back to life through detailed coaching tips and player feedback. With an entirely new introspection system, players can discover on their own what their strengths and weaknesses are. A player's introspection system is developed through player feedback, and includes activities such as "Hero Shots," "Ball Mastering" and "Misplays." Skill Attainment Realistic Training Mechanics Training and game development has been significantly improved in FIFA 22. The introduction of new skills and gameplay mechanics have offered new levels of realism to players. Trainable skills Ending an attack the attacking player has now a better chance to score With game improvements such as long-distance shots, improving the accuracy of headers, depleting the ball of air, and the creation of more variety of ball flight types, the game offers a unique experience for both players and spectators. A new FIFA Dynamic Movement System, also known as DMS, enables players to make specific and great tactical adjustments with ultra-precision. The DMS offers five
