The number one consumer video editing software, Pinnacle Studio hasÂ .This invention relates to an actuator for a fluid displacement machine, particularly a piston and cylinder device and particularly a stepper motor for the same. Stepper motors are becoming more and more popular because of their small size, low profile, no maintenance and low speed inherent in stepper motors compared with conventional DC motors or induction motors. The obvious possible application of stepper motors is for the power drive systems for the conventional hydraulics actuators in fluid displacement machines. However, the piston and cylinder actuators are unsuitable for stepper motors because the stroke is so large that with one step of the motor the fluid displacement is completed. If the stroke could be minimized the stepper motor could be used. Thus, it is the object of this invention to reduce the stroke of the actuator by designing a motor to drive the same.Q: Django calling a foreign key from another model I am trying to add a form/model to a existing model. The models are defined thus: class Author(models.Model): name = models.CharField(max_length = 20) class Article(models.Model): title = models.CharField(max_length = 20) url = models.URLField() author = models.ForeignKey(Author) This is what my models look like. Now what I want to do is add another model called ArticleViews. A view model that has a TextField that allows me to input a string that I can then use to display the article on that page of my site. So my question is, how do I access the author's name with these two models setup like this? Any suggestions would be greatly appreciated, let me know if you need further clarifications. A: You can set up a form on your Article model, and
