It was originally published Feb. 2, 2014. EAST LANSING - If you have chicken tetrazzini, it's probably some variation on chicken gumbo or chicken bake. But there is more than one kind of chicken gumbo, and certainly more than one kind of chicken bake. Trust me, because I made and ate my fair share of them. And I made this one again, and quite honestly it was one of the best I've eaten. And, bonus, it makes enough for a crowd. This is a chicken stew that I made a few years ago based on an Indian dish I had once at a friends' house. If you're not trying to make a curry, you don't need the yogurt, onion, cumin and coriander, and I opted to use chicken thighs instead of chicken breast. You can use any combination you like, but I do recommend trying not to serve this as a one-pot meal. It's a rather tall order, because the chicken takes on the flavor of everything else, and you might end up with a rather rich dish

This Outlook connector is one of the MDAemon Add-ons that allow users to run Microsoft Outlook (XML version) using a PDA device as a mail server. The Outlook connector for MDAemon allows MS Outlook users to share calendar, contacts and other items with their MDAemon clients. MDAemon will only act as a Mail server for sending and receiving messages. The client/MS Outlook is linked to a database residing on a portable device. Using the Microsoft Outlook connector for MDAemon with Outlook, users can connect and synchronize with their MDAemon Exchange service via their Outlook client. The Outlook connector is particularly useful for users who already have Outlook client installed on their PDA. With the MDAemon connector, Outlook users will be able to view and modify in their Outlook client all contacts, calendar, journals, tasks, and notes from an MDAemon client. Create as many groups of contacts as you want for each client; assign users to those groups in the user's Outlook client. Send and receive all kinds of messages from the MDAemon client. Configure the settings for the synchronization, so that all changes made in the Outlook client will be synchronized with the MDAemon client. Key Features: Provides MDAemon as a mail server to send and receive mails Synchronizes contacts, tasks, journals, notes and calendar Remove and add contacts from the lists Sends and receives emails from the Exchange server Apply scheduling, auto-reply No need to synchronize contacts, tasks, calendars and journals Ability to access contacts, journals and tasks from an Outlook client Ability to create different configurations for multiple clients Send and receive all kinds of messages from the MDAemon client Configure the settings for the synchronization, so that all changes made in the Outlook client will be synchronized with the MDAemon client License Information: Licensing is 1 Year with updates for a single client. Supporting MDAemon SQLite or MySQL database (depending on the server installed on the PDA). Supporting the Client/Server version, which requires the client to be on a PDA, and the server to be on a PC. Compatibility Issues: PC or PDA? Need PDA Version? Added or b7e8fdf5c8
