Q: Oracle 11G: Changing varchar column size How can I change the size of a column? I know I can add a new column, but in that case, I do not know how to change the size of an already existing one. A: You can't change the size of the column as the data in it is already there. If you need to add more data it's time to create a new column. Even if you do that, you can't change the size of that column either because the size of the column is fixed at compilation/create time. Pseudoperiodic activity and the initiation of fetal breathing movements in the ovine fetus. The present experiments were carried out to test the hypothesis that a fetal behavioral state, which has been shown to be characterized by a periodic pattern of spontaneous movements, precedes fetal breathing movements, and that this periodicity persists until the occurrence of fetal breathing movements. Time-dated ovine fetuses of 125-128 days gestation were instrumented chronically with ultrasonic fetal heart rate monitors, a maternal intra-arterial catheter, a carotid artery pulse transducer for detection of fluctuations in intrauterine pressure and a catheter directed into one of the fetal cranial arteries. Fetal breathing movements were counted by two observers who were unaware of the time and intrauterine pressure of the breathing events. In addition, spontaneous movements were counted and the onset of fetal movements associated with breathing was noted. Most fetal breathing episodes began at a time when spontaneous movements were initially manifest and continued until the fetal respiratory pattern appeared. Both spontaneous movement and fetal breathing movements occurred throughout a single breathing cycle. Consistent with this observation, the onsets of fetal movements which were associated with breathing were temporally coincident with the onsets of fetal breathing movement. The results support the hypothesis that, in the ovine fetus, the periodicity of spontaneous movements precedes the onset of fetal breathing movements and persists for a sufficient duration during a breathing cycle to include both the expiratory and inspiratory phases.Nanotechnology General News The latest news from academia, regulators research labs and other things of interest Posted: May 24, 2010 Gold nanoparticles that can identify cancer cells are simple to make and can be used to target and kill the cancer cells (Nanowerk News) Cancer cells, which typically spread from one part of the body to another, are notoriously difficult to
