New Apple® iPhones have always had a problem. They have either bad batteries, bad drivers, or both. But one of the new features of the iPhone 7 and 7 Plus is that Apple now uses Secure Enclave Technology. One way Apple uses Secure Enclave Technology is with their Face Time on the iPhone 7. Because the Face Time camera is on the Secure Enclave, there will be a small delay between when you take a photo, and when it goes to the other person. It's not just Face Time, there is a delay in multitasking as well. Apple actually warns users of the iPhone 5S about this, but for some reason Apple removed the warning from the iPhone 7 User Guide. If you use the Fast App Switcher for multitasking, you can get the same problem. After you view an app or press the Home button, it will switch to the next app or home screen. Before it can do that, it's going to pause and wait for the Secure Enclave to "check" the photo. In the new iPhone 7 Plus, the delay is faster. Note: The iPhone 7 Plus has a rear camera that is 3X the size as the front camera. Because of this, when Apple takes your picture it has to process and save it in a file twice. The reason we care about this is that if someone is recording you over Face Time, they can slow down the recording of your conversation as long as the file you are recording is still processing. The iPhone has been processing your photo for several seconds. This is not on us, it's a byproduct of Secure Enclave Technology. The screen will let you know that it's taking this long, so you can take your own picture if you want. Your Slow 2 CPU - Slow 2. Apple sells the iPhone at a premium. Because of that, you expect good performance and have a reason to return the phone when there is a problem. If you are a developer, sometimes it's important to know if your app is going to be slow. With the iPhone 7, you don't need to use a Slow-mode app to see what your app will do on the phone. You can download the app, run it, and it will use the phone's proper speed. The reason is because with new iPhones the Secure Enclave

Description..Elevation of inositol 1,4,5-trisphosphate-sensitive calcium stores by progesterone is mediated by arachidonate metabolites. It has been suggested that progesterone may be acting at different receptors to mobilize calcium stores. This possibility was addressed in this study by comparing the effects of progesterone on both calcium and inositol 1,4,5-trisphosphate (IP3) release from [3H]IP3-labeled human myometrial cells. We found that progesterone caused a significant increase in IP3-release that was blocked by ICI-182780, a selective progesterone receptor antagonist. The effect of progesterone on IP3 release was potentiated by exogenous arachidonate but was not affected by inhibition of phospholipase A2, cyclooxygenase, or 5-lipoxygenase
