Common Causes of Rug Fringe Damage

Foot Traffic

Constant foot traffic can gradually wear down the fringe, leading to fraying and thinning over time.

Improper Cleaning

Harsh cleaning methods or products can damage the delicate fringe, causing it to become brittle and discolored.

Natural Aging

As rugs age, the fringe naturally weakens and becomes more susceptible to wear and tear.

The fringe is made of natural fibers, possibly wool or cotton, and is a light beige or cream color. The main body of the rug is dark blue or black with some red and tan patterns visible at the bottom.
